Robinson to Pitch Marquard Or Smith Against Coveleskie; Fair Weather Is Promised

Rube, Veteran Southpaw, Ready for Classic; Brooklyn Team Has Advantage in having Rested Longer Than American League Rivals

By W. O. McGeehan

The Brooklyn Dodgers start the world's series of 1920 with the Cleveand Indians at Ebbets Field to-day with the odds favoring the Indians, six thousand will be able to crowd into the park, though something like 100,000 or more from Brooklyn alone have applied for tickets.

Uncle Wilbert Robinson will pin his faith in a lefthander for the opening game, and the choice probably will be Rube Marquard, discarded by the Giants and later honorably discharged from the United States Navy after keeping the decks of a destroyer immaculate with a lefthanded mop during the late war. If it is not the Rube, it will be Sergeant Sherrod Smith, the lefthanded doughboy, who represented the Dodgers in the trenches. But it looks like the Rube.

There is much speculation as to what the attitude of the spectators in this series will be. Certainly it will be watched in detail more carefully than ever a world's series was watched, and most of the multitude will be made up of critics rather than of fans.

Twinkling stars in a cloudless sky last night seemed to bear out the forecaster's preliminary announcement of "fair weather, with moderate winds," for the initial battle for the premier honors of the professional diamond to-day. But a fairly heavy rainstorm came on the scene at 9 o'clock. When asked to explain, the weather man said the storm was due to low atmospheric pressure and promised that it would be clear, although somewhat cooler, to-day.

"Don't Judge All

Players by a Few

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Oct. 4.—
All of the 500 or more players in the major leagues are not to be judged by the actions of the small band of players who have been found to have accepted money to "throw away" world series games, is the opinion of Christy Mathewson, former famous pitcher of the New York Giants, who is here being treated for tuberculosis.

This epinion, coming from the "Big Six," was expressed this afternoon in an interview with Mrs. Mathewson, as the strict rules laid down by his physicians prohibit any person from visiting him.

The game will not suffer greatly. Matty said, despite the "black eye" it has received because of a few men who betrayed their teammates and clubs.

While in a serious condition, doctors do not consider Mathewson to be in a critical stage. With his wife acting as his nurse, Matty is receiving the best of medical attention.

Since his arrival in Saranae Lake

since his arrival in Saranac Lake last July Matty has not gained in weight, but has been holding his own and is putting up a strong fight.

The playing field of the Brooklyn park has been manicured for the last time, and every reserved seat disposed of, while thousands of disappointed fans were engaged last night in a friends who would sell or loan them a ticket for at least one game.

Arrangements and setting for the series of 1920 will not differ greatly from those which have already made haseball history. If there is any outstanding feature, it is expected to be furnished by the spectators. Their attitude toward the baseball classic and the players who participate in the struggle is an angle which cannot be foreast.
